

ABSTRACT

A packing attachment for front loader machines includes a substantially elongate shaft having a longitudinal axis, a mount end and a compacting end, the mount end having a mounting structure disposed thereon, the mounting structure defining spaced mounting points for connecting to a front loader machine, and the spaced mounting points defining a plane which is disposed at an angle to the longitudinal axis of between about 60° and about 80°.